

Still We Will Dance

Lynn Arnold

Lynn Arnold

It starts out un - ex - pect - ed - ly; the catch - ing of an In ear - ly days, it's hard to know just where a dance might
A part - ner - ship must be a dance in or - der to suc -
A dance may be a waltz or jig, or some - thing like a 4 Life has a rhy - thm all its own, in all the tunes it eye; A sim - ple ques - tion posed by one, the o - ther's quick re - go. Though temp - ted to rush through the steps, we keep the rhy - thm ceed. Some - times I slip, you hold me up, some - times I take the walk. As we grow old, it may just be the times we sit and 8 plays, The op - por - tu - ni - ties to dance a con - stant through our ply. You'll ne - ver guess how much can change, from just that first slow. The fut - ure calls, we both ag - ree that we'll take the lead. If, through what - e - ver time we have that good for - tune talk. The dance e - volves; it does - n't mean the end of ro - 12 days. To live a life that sa - tis - fies, ful - fills, and en - glance, A seed is plant - ed with the words, "May I have this dance?"
chance And pro - mise to be part - ners for a life - time of dance.
grants, We move to - ge - ther, not a - gainst, we can't help but dance.
mance— We car - ry on, in our own way, con - ti - nue to dance.
chants, Just li - sten for the mu - sic and re - mem - ber to dance.

17 Chorus
The sea - sons turn, the years go by, and so we dance a - long; Some - 22 times the rhy - thm's hard to find, some - times the beat is strong. The 26 steps may change, the tem - po slow, by choice or by chance; We may not know what 31 lies a - head, but still we will dance.